SUMMARY

I was working various jobs in different industries for 4+ years and decided to make a change. I have now turned full-stack developer in hopes of creating and building new products for the forever growing tech industry. Partnering with colleagues during my time as a developer, my mentor-ship, collaboration and resilience was a critical factor in the efficiency of the group. As I would help fellow classmates understand difficult material, direct projects by overseeing which group members would execute certain features. Along with finding libraries and methods to improve functionality of the projects.
